Boots (and New Year's Plans) of the Day: Tretorn x Ace Hotel

December 29, 2010 at 12:43PM by The Fashion Editors

Several dilemmas befall men this week: A) there's a frickin' blizzard, 2) you were supposed to be traveling instead, and D) nobody got you a new pair of snow boots for Christmas. Oh yeah, and that New Year's Eve bash your friends were throwing is up in the air, what with half the country's party-throwing friends stuck at their stepfather's place in southern California — or some very tasteful part of an airport nearby.

One solution: the Ace Hotel — as in, the one that couldn't matter more right now and that couldn't have popped up in more fantastic places this year — has teamed up with the Nordic rain-boot makers at Tretorn with an affordable, lined, wrap-around-rubber-soled, and comfortably unisex piece of low-cut footwear. So now you can steal your lady's boots while you steal her away for a booze-addled, pig-sucklin' staycation. (Have they invented another word for "staycation" yet? "Hometownner," perhaps?) Oh yeah, and they've got Q Tip and our pal Theophilus London DJ-ing their New Year's party here in New York. So go ahead and book the party/room/champagne combo while you still can, and be sure to exit through the gift shop.

Couple more room-and-overboard solutions, for those of you elsewhere:

- CHICAGO: The Black Fking Keys at Aragon Ballroom (stay anywhere)
- AUSTIN: Pork, posh, and Topaz and Mudphonic at Hotel Saint Cecilia
- MIAMI: Swan Lake in the pool (!) and Joey Arias at the Delano
- D.C.: Open bar and the Walkmen at the Westin
- BOSTON: Get on the Amtrak to New York. Like, now.
- L.A.: You're on your own.
